LONDON, Nov. 30.—(INS)—For the first time, a slight easing in the war-like international situation was seen in some British circles today as a result of a hasty maneuver from Rome.

The first of these was a quick statement seeking to ease French and British apprehensions regarding Italian troop movements reportedly aimed at the French frontier as a warning against extension of League of Nations sanctions.

Secondly, inspired statements came from the Italian capital that an armistice announcement was expected as a result of today's meeting of Il Duce's cabinet. The meeting, according to the statement, will deal with routine matters.

Thirdly, Rome issued a flat denial of reports that Italy had threatened France an oil embargo which would be regarded as an act of war.

Dictated by B. Duco

These peace moves, believed to have been dictated by Premier Mussolini, were regarded by some circles here as general easing of the crisis caused by the drive toward extension of league sanctions, and the sudden Italian troop movements.

It was believed, however, that the improved situation could only be temporary, and that another showdown would have to be met after Dec. 12, when the League of Nations sanctions committee of 18 will meet to consider enlarging the penalties already in force against Italy.

The statement that Italy would not consider an oil embargo as an act of war was particularly viewed (Continued on Page Eight)

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 30

—(INS)—Up in "The Little White House" on Pine mountain, President Roosevelt was waiting to see from what sources it would come—because the president has two more speaking engagements on his schedule ten days hence at Chicago and South Bend where any attacks can be answered if necessary.

The campaign, it seemed, was well under way.

The president took manifest pleasure yesterday in announcing that 3,125,000 men had been put to work before Dec. 1, as promised.

His plan now is that Works Progress Administration Harry Hopkins shall keep them at work during the winter months through March. By April, Mr. Roosevelt is hopeful that the heavier and permanent projects under Public Works Administrator Harold Ickes will take hold and pick up the load until private enterprise is able to again shoulder it.

Here in Georgia, however, the big immediate interest was the next development in the Roosevelt-Talmadge feud. Yesterday was the president's day to the point that some of his supporters hanged Governor Talmadge in effigy, red suspenders and all, on the state capital lawn and the governor himself decided to stay away from the home-coming celebration entirely.

SALES TAX FOES ACT TO EXEMPT FOOD FROM BILL

Rep. Carey of Lucas Heads Drive; Passage for Another Year Expected

COLUMBUS, Nov. 30.—Opponents of the sales tax, convinced that the levy will be adopted by the House when it is brought up next Tuesday, today were preparing to support Rep. John Q. Carey (D) Lucas, in his proposal to exempt food from the bill in 1936.

Mr. Carey led an unsuccessful fight in the taxation committee to eliminate food from the tax. An amendment was adopted however, as a corollary to the income tax, that food be exempted from the sales levy in 1937.

For Personal Levy

The Lucas representative estimated that by exempting food from the sales tax, the state would lose about 10 million dollars in revenue. To make this up and add additional revenue, he proposes to extend the tax to personal services. The state tax commission has estimated that extension of the levy to services would mean $25,000 in more revenue.

Although observers believe there is little likelihood for either proposal winning the support of the majority, there will be many legislators to whom the entire law is extremely distasteful and who will go along with Rep. Carey on the food exemption.

Store Windows Filled

Circleville's store windows are aglow with Christmas colors, bright ornaments, sparkling tinsel and holiday gifts. Local merchants, expecting the largest Christmas business in many years have purchased big stocks of holiday merchandise.

Ezra's Mission to Jerusalem

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for December 1 is Ezra, Chapters 7 and 8, the Golden Text being 8:22, "The hand of our God is upon all them that seek him, for good." To briefly summarize the whole ministry of Ezra we quote the chapter on Ezra from the authors' "Brass Tacks," "The Gift of the Bible Book by Book" by Dr. Alvin E. Bell, Toledo, O., publisher.

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL
JEREMIAH prophesied the 70 years' captivity and the captives' return from Babylon. He did this

Ezra's Mission to Jerusalem

Eighty years after Zerubbabel led the first expedition from Babylon to Jerusalem, Artaxerxes encouraged Ezra to lead a second group of captives to return. He even gave Ezra millions of dollars in gold and silver to rebuild the temple.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The journey of Ezra required, four months. The journey was a hard and perilous one. But it was accomplished safely, because "the good hand of his God was upon them," guarding and keeping them.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Ezra made his journey an object of prayer from first to last. He said, "I was ashamed to require of the king a band of soldiers because we had told the king the hand of our God is upon all them for good that seek him."

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Upon reaching Jerusalem Ezra found that those who had returned earlier had neglected God's law and fallen into the ways. So Ezra read to them God's law and led them to repent. (GOLDEN TEXT—Ezra 8:22)

A layman has said, "Unless we recognize the fundamental values of the church, and through the church seek a closer relationship with the Divine, social justice cannot be achieved; political leadership will not accomplish its desired purpose; economic leadership will fail in its effort to establish a full measure of prosperity."

"The church more than any other institution in society seeks to make the world in which we live in our practical lives the least selfish common honesty, common decency, fair play and righteousness. The public is invited to attend. An offering will be taken.

Making God Real

A prominent layman has said, "Unless we recognize the fundamental values of the church, and through the church seek a closer relationship with the Divine, social justice cannot be achieved; political leadership will not accomplish its desired purpose; economic leadership will fail in its effort to establish a full measure of prosperity."

The church more than any other institution in society seeks to make God real to the world in which we live. In our practical lives, the church symbolizes common honesty, common decency, fair play and righteousness. It is through the church and its influence that a way is provided for man to develop a closer relationship with God. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for December 1 is Ezra, Chapters 7 and 8, the Golden Text being 8:22, "The hand of our God is upon all them that seek him, for good." To briefly summarize the whole ministry of Ezra we quote the chapter on Ezra from the authors' Bible studies, "The Gist of the Bible Book by Book" by Dr. Alvin E. Bell, Toledo, O., publisher.)

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

JEREMIAH prophesied the 70 years' captivity and the captives' return from Babylon. He did this by his parable of the vessel marred in the potter's hand, and related how "he made it again another vessel." The Book of Ezra shows the divine Potter remaking the Babylonian captives into a nation, giving them the gospel of the second chance to carry out His divine purposes. The book falls into two parts around its two great men. The first six chapters deal with the first return from captivity under Zerubbabel, and of his work of rebuilding the altar and temple of Jehovah. The last four chapters tell of a second group's return under Ezra, and of his prosecution of the work begun under Zerubbabel. Between chapters 6 and 7 there is a silent period of about 80 years.

Zerubbabel's Ministry

"The Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus, King of Persia," so the book begins, to make a proclamation, authorizing the return to Jerusalem of such captive Jews as desired to rebuild the house of Jehovah, and a remnant numbering about fifty thousand, of whom nearly one-tenth were priests, returned under Zerubbabel. Their first care upon returning to the ruined city was to restore the altar and all the offerings and feasts which they had so shamefully neglected before the captivity. The foundations of the temple, were laid amidst mingled weeping of the older generations who had seen the greater splendor of Solomon's temple, and the joyous shouting of the younger generation.

Ezra's Ministry

The second contingent of captives returned under the leadership of Ezra, the scribe, about 80 years after the return under Zerubbabel. Ezra stands out as a great man of faith, so sure of the protecting hand of God over that caravan of people and treasure, that he was ashamed to ask the king for a military guard after professing faith in the protecting hand of God. The condition, Ezra found in Jerusalem among the Jews who had returned earlier was distressing. Thus Ezra took drastic measures to abate mixed marriages with idolatrous neighbors. And Israel was restored.

Ezra's Mission to Jerusalem

Eighty years after Zerubbabel led the first expedition from Babylon to Jerusalem, Artaxerxes encouraged Ezra to lead a second group of captives to return. He even gave Ezra millions of dollars in gold and silver to rebuild the temple.

The journey of Ezra required four months. The journey was a hard and perilous one. But it was accomplished safely, because "the good hand of his God was upon them," guarding and keeping them.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Ezra made his journey an object of prayer from first to last. He said, "I was ashamed to require of the king a band of soldiers because we had told the king the hand of our God is upon all them for good that seek him."

Upon reaching Jerusalem Ezra found that those who had returned earlier had neglected God's law and fallen into sinful ways. So Ezra read to them God's law and led them to repent. (GOLDEN TEXT—Ezra 8:22)

Two of the most effective English preachers today are London women. The wife of Rowntree Clifford, ex-president of the Baptist union of Great Britain and Ireland, has built up a great congregation of women and two thousand listen to her every week. Dr. Maude Royden, a member of the Established Church, holds her crowded service in Cuild House. She is a fearless exponent of the cause of peace.

ITALY AND JAPAN
ON OPPOSITE sides of the world two nations are being pillaged. The tactics are different, but the underlying principle is the same. Of both invaders necessity for expansion and desire for conquest at this time are the dominating motives. Mussolini's dream and open boast of African empire is of five years' standing. Japan's determination to create an "autonomous" state from the North China provinces is part of a long-conceived plan.

Almost at the very moment Italy begins to experience the force of financial and economic sanctions imposed by the League of Nations, the Japanese feel free to minimize their pretense. Self-nominated custodians of Eastern Asia, they are confident they will not be interfered with. They took Manchuria, and the league contented itself with saying "Naughty, naughty!" So the penetration of the Northern Chinese provinces began. Today these provinces are garrisoned and politically controlled by the Japanese and there is every reason to believe the report that the powerful Japanese army in Manchukuo will be used if China seeks by force to prevent the creation of the new North China state.

What will the league do? What can it do at the moment? Nothing, apparently. League members cannot take their eyes off Ethiopia. Though sanctions against Italy were voted with most surprising unanimity by both the council and the assembly of the league, there are many members who doubt the good faith of the others. The hope that Italy can be economically starved into early abandonment of the Ethiopian campaign with some saving of face is dampened by the fear members will cheat on sanctions.

Meanwhile, overcrowded Japan has to find a place for her surplus population. Canada does not desire Japanese immigrants. Australia, handicapped by water shortage, will not have them. Neither will the U. S., and the U. S. would look askance at large Japanese colonization in Mexico. The Philippines are barred to them for at least a decade more until American sovereignty ends, and, perhaps, by an understanding with the United States, for the long future. In the train of Italy and Japan as seekers of territory for their nationals may ultimately come Germany. Desire for better bread and more of it is the main-spring of most conquests, and it is, unhappily, a desire not sated by treaties.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
MAYORS CONSIDER UNEMPLOYMENT PERMANENT, GOVERNMENT RELIEF VITAL

WASHINGTON — One fact stood out with striking force at the Mayors' Conference here:

The overwhelming majority of municipal executives are ardent advocates of Federal relief. Squared up against the impossible task of stretching depression-riddled treasuries to cover even meager relief needs, most mayors and city managers are joining no Liberty League chorus about "excessive Government expenditures."

To them, Federal funds have been literal life-savers, rescuing their communities from financial collapse and civil disturbance. Their big demand was for MORE Government money.

The most rousing moment of the three-day meeting occurred when Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins, discarding his prepared manuscript, declared that the "Government of the United States has put its hand to this plow (of relief) and it is never going to be taken away."

With a few exceptions the city fathers attending the conference consider unemployment a permanent problem.

Baltimore's Mayor Howard Jackson talking informally to a group of colleagues, voiced the idea in these words: "I look forward to a steady and strong improvement in business in every line and at the same time a practically undiminished number of unemployed."

Technological developments and the increasing mechanization of production were held responsible for this condition.

Next to the Mayors' demand for more Government money, was their clamor for a long range relief policy. Washington's policy of shifting to a different plan every year—first direct relief, then the CWA, then back to the dole, and now the PWA—makes for waste and inefficiency.

They want to see a permanent Federal relief program, combining all these formulas if necessary, but one which the cities can be sure of and base their plans upon. 'mwuua

Another reason why the privileged few get what they want in Washington is because they know what they want.

For that matter, earnings could be raised to a decent level by plowing under every third writer.

MURDER UPSTAIRS

By ADAM BLISS

READ THIS FIRST:
Alice Penny, proprietress of a boarding house, is informed by one of her servants that her carving knife is missing. A few moments later Lucy Upham, an old friend, tells Alice that either she or Andrew Darien, a middle-aged bachelor whom she dislikes, must leave. Alice agrees to ask Darien to go though it means repaying him more than $750 he had advanced for room and board. Alice worries about how to obtain cash to repay Andrew Darien and finally retires. She hears something strike her window. After letting in Conrad Withers, a boarder who had forgotten his key, Alice finds Marcella Cambridge, her school teacher roomer, having a glass of milk in the kitchen. They chat for a few minutes and then both go to their rooms for the night. During breakfast the next morning Della, the maid, discovers that Andrew Darien has been murdered, stabbed to death in his bed with the missing carving knife. Alice finds a hairpin which she knows belongs to Janet Bell, her youngest boarder, in Darien's room and secretes it in her hair. The police arrive, headed by Lieutenant Kirk Larrabee, and launch their investigation.
'NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY'

I saw Helen Starmont's shoulders quiver every once in a while.

CHAPTER #
AGAIN I FELT for Janet Bell's hairpin after I put out my cigarette. The hairpin was intact, and I leaned back but didn't relax. Lucy wasn't relaxing either. No one in the room was relaxing as we sat and waited, and I was the only one who had heard what Kirk Larrabee had said to John Murray. I was the only one who had talked with the policeman, for they had come right upstairs with me.

There was a uniformed man in the hall walking, too. I could see him through the half opened folding doors, peering at the clock, picking up a book that lay on the table which belonged to me, unfolding The Times which Mr. Darien subscribed to, and read every morning after breakfast in the living room, until he left the house at 10:30. Sorting through the mail which the postman had brought a few minutes before, he made no move to bring the mail into the living room. Indeed after he looked over it, he put it in his pocket.

So we weren't even to have our morning mail. . . . Mr. Hemingway had flung himself into a big lounge chair, and was examining his fingernails. . . . He was young, 30 I think, but his hair is creeping farther away from his forehead every day. When he came to me two years ago, he hadn't started to get bald, but now he has a pate that isn't becoming to his youth. Of all my people I like Hemingway the least. Not that he isn't pleasant. He is. And considerate, but there's something about him that is sneaky. His mouth is senuous, and cruel, too, if a mouth can be two things at once. Mr. Darien brought him to the house, and I didn't like him from the first, and didn't want to give him that empty room next to Mr. Darien's, but I had to. The two of them were very friendly, although I never could see why because they had so little in common. Mr. Darien was in the loan business and Mr. Hemingway edits a small weekly magazine of gossip.

I know he's been pestering Janet to go out with him, and I know she won't go—but I can't do anything about it. She doesn't like him any more than I do. You can see it when she looks at him, and answers him. Of course I don't blame him for wanting to go out with her. If I were a man, I'd feel the same way he does, but then again, I'd have some little pride when I knew a girl wouldn't look at me, and leave her alone.

There was only one other person in the room, and that was Mrs. Starmont. Mrs. Helen Starmont, she said, when she came to take a room three months ago. In the three months that Mrs. Starmont has been with me, I am not much wiser about her than when she came. She's a difficult person to know. It's almost as if she didn't want people to know her. She's friendly, ent from the rest of her. Although she keeps them manicured beautifully, with her nails tinted a light coral, they aren't the soft delicate white hands you'd expect a woman such as she is to have. The skin on them is coarse and the cuticle a broken. Her fingers don't taper. They're stubby. She's conscious of them. I found that out the first night she sat down to dinner by the way she suddenly put them in her lap when she discovered me staring at them. I wasn't being inquisitive when I looked at them, but I suppose she thought I was. Anyway as she put them into her lap, that blank look came into her eyes.

Lucy says that if she saw Mrs. Starmont on a transatlantic liner she'd either think she was an adventuress, or a divorcee with a lot of unspent alimony. But she can't place Mrs. Starmont in a high class family boarding house. Neither can I. Grace seems to like her, at least on several occasions when I have come into the kitchen in the afternoon. I've found Mrs. Starmont in the kitchen talking with my cook. Once after one of these visits Grace said to me emphatically that she thought Mrs. Starmont was a fine woman. As Grace seldom says much, this was a lot for her to say.

That Mrs. Starmont is timid I guessed right away, because when you talk to her, and she answers, she smiles shyly. Her smile is nice. I like it, but it doesn't go with her dyed hair—for once Marcella Cambridge is right about hair, I'm convinced it's dyed—any more than it goes with the green satin chaise-loungue and the lovely clothes Mrs. Starmont has. For she does dress well. She has a lot of clothes but what she has are good models. If I know models, and expensive. She has two simple little dinner dresses that I'd give my soul to own, even if I couldn't come within a mile of getting into them. Not that anyone else wears dinner dresses at my table. They don't, but several times a week Mrs. Starmont does. The first time she came down in her beige lace with the short shoulder cape, Miss Cambridge upset her glass of water, and most of it fell in her lap. When she first came I must say that Mrs. Starmont was pretty thin, but now she's beginning to fill out, and the pounds she has put on are very becoming.

She was sitting near Grace on a low ottoman, her head buried in her hands, and the lace of her negligee dragging on the rug. Every once in a while I saw her shoulders quiver under the green satin as if she were cold or nervous or frightened or all three together. Grace had suggested when she came into the room that she have a cup of coffee but she refused. She didn't want anything, she said.

Physician Cites Criticism From Some of His Readers

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I AM FREQUENTLY asked whether I ever receive any letters from readers which are of a critical or antagonistic nature. The answer is, I do. I will append a few as samples of what a writer experiences from time to time. I take medicine of this kind regularly three or four times a day. I usually try to reply to it poetically so as to keep my temper sweet, as follows:

1. From Dr. H.: "I challenge your absurd statement in today's paper. Don't be an old fogey."

2. Mr. G. K.: "I am astonished that any newspaper would allow an ignorant like you to publish articles in its columns."

3. Miss G. R. E.: "You must have had a most unfortunate experience with your school instructors. So far as I am concerned I never wish to hear your name again."

4. Mr. R. S. L.: "I should think the only thing they would let you treat are horses."

5. Scornful: "Your writings on dietetic subjects, especially aluminum, would cause me to break into laughter if they were not so pitiful."

6. O. A.: "There ought to be a law against such people as you."

7. L. D.: "I'll bet you don't dare print this—but after reading your line of tripe, I come to the conclusion that you ought to be in the woman's fashion department. What you don't know would fill a library of encyclopedias."

8. A Former Admiree: "I used to believe you knew something about physiology, but after reading your recent remarks on vegetarianism, I have decided that I cannot be bothered with anyone as infinitesimal as you."

9. Iowa: "I suggest that you have a season of fasting and prayer and see if you can't get back a somewhat more balanced viewpoint."

10. S. Q.: "I wish I had time and liberty to tell you what I think of you."

11. License they mean when they cry Liberty. For who loves that must first be wise and good."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendingen can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendingen, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. A. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

THE THREE-TRUMP ECHO
ONE OF THE ingenious stratagems used by defenders is the widely known convention, the 3-trump echo. When 3 useless trumps are held, the middle one is played on the first lead of trumps, followed by the lowest trump on the second lead, to show partner that just 3 trumps originally were held. The play accomplishes two purposes: It enables partner to count the number of trumps held by declarer, sometimes showing that ruffing the latter will weaken him and defeat the contract; in case the echoer's partner wins the second trump trick and the echoer is able to ruff a suit, the echo may enable the defenders to defeat the contract. The hand today shows an instance where South's 3-trump echo alone enabled his side to defeat the game call.

A MISUNDERSTANDING
Stranger: Did you see a pedestrian pass here?
Native: No, I've been workin' here all afternoon, and not a thing has come by 'cep'in' one solitary man, an' he was trampin' on foot.

Bidding went: North, 1-Heart, third hand; East, 1-Spade; West, 3-Spades, enabling East to risk 4-Spades.
Of course the opening lead was the 9 of hearts, showing only lack of 4 cards of the suit. Dummy's 10 and North's Q covered. Declarer's Ace won. East led the Ace of spades, dropping North's Q. It was a clumsy method of pulling trumps, which would have defeated the contract had North held three trumps, as then he must have won two spade tricks. However, it did no harm in this case. The J of spades lost to North's K.

South had played the 3 of spades on the first trump trick and the 2 on the next one, showing an added trump in his hand, also enabling his partner to count declarer's two trumps left. It had not occurred to North that East had bid a 4-card suit. The 3-trump echo set him right on that point, and showed him a sure method of defeating the call in case South originally had held only 2 hearts. Without that hint North would have led back a club, hoping that partner held the missing Ace of clubs, and so could again lead through dummy's J of hearts. New North knew that in case his partner held the Ace of clubs and also could ruff a heart that the contract would be down 2 tricks.

North led his K of hearts. East played the 2. When partner played the 6 it was questionable whether declarer or South was void of the suit, but there seemed no chance of losing game by leading back the suit. It was almost certain that declarer held at least two clubs, so North led back a small heart for South to ruff, as North did not believe that his partner would use the 3-trump echo unless able to ruff hearts. South's ruff was the only method of defeating the call.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

The relief situation gets no better. Few states are equipped to handle it.

A correspondent in one of the leading papers of the nation remarks: "It is noted that the people who cry that the federal government should balance its budget generally insist in the same breath that the federal government should continue direct relief so that the states will not have to impose any new taxes."

Ohio probably has the worst situation of any of the populous states. Governor Martin L. Davey, anti-New Deal Democrat, seemingly cannot make up his mind what course to pursue. He does not desire to add new taxes, for he faces re-election next year. The legislature is in the same frame of mind.

Thus we find the Columbus correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, Ralph J. Donaldson, saying: "Difficult as it is to believe, it nevertheless appears probable that some men, women and children in Ohio will have to starve before the legislature will be moved sufficiently to act on the relief problem."

BUILDING COSTS
One of the ways to prosperity—building construction—still presents discouraging obstacles, in spite of better-looking statistics. America needs new building (it could use millions of houses), but only the most speculative of building ventures is inviting today. Mortgage interest remains the highest interest.

Building costs are out of proportion to completed values. And construction workers still rank high among those on relief. It seems fantastical, yet it is true.

Builders say that a strong protest was made because German steel and French cement were "dumped" into the United States to compete on PWA projects, but nobody looks into this.

"That a tariff on steel and other building products, a tariff that permits prices to remain at an abnormal high, so discourages building construction that thousands and thousands of workmen are deprived of jobs.

A lowering of that tariff would not flood the American market with "cheap" products so much as to stimulate a vast industry and provide millions of persons with much-needed homes, observers within the building industry say.

After all, Americans can produce a better and more reasonable mass product than can the Europeans and become immensely wealthy at it, as Henry Ford has proved.

F. D. R. WAITING?
An unusual number of comments have been received on a letter from a woman that appeared in this column.

This woman suggested that President Roosevelt may resume the New Deal following his re-election.

She added: "I do not believe he has abandoned the New Deal. He could not. Life is evolution—and the laws of life must keep step."

William Owen, of West Palm Beach, Fla., says: "Your woman reader is right. . . . A ruler to be successful must direct his actions according to the spirit of the times, and the ruler whose actions do not accord with the times will not be successful. . . . Change faces tradition and challenges it. Tradition faces change and resists it. . . . The owner of machines owes a duty to society, as much as does the worker. . . . Is the job complete with 10 million men on the dole?"

Mrs. J. F. Walker, of R. D. 3, Mansfield, O., however, observes: "The strange thing to me in expressions of New Dealers is the fact that, almost without exception, they assume that the New Deal as proposed by the president is without question a panacea for all our ills—the Utopian plan by which all the earth will be and become heavenly. . . . The pity is we have lost confidence in our government or anything it sponsors. Let us get back to high moral principles—honesty, thrift, integrity, justice; let us live sanely within our income (individually and nationally) and crucify greed. . . . And we shall find the NRA and other N. D. features unnecessary."

branches of the Legislature are to reconvene Monday night to take up the crisis existing in 17 counties where authorities have no funds to take care of the unemployed who are to be dropped from federal relief rolls tonight.

The only solution appears to be an appropriation from the general revenue fund as a stop-gap measure, with the hope that a complete state-wide program will be adopted later.

Champions Easy Victors In Non-title Contests

Barney Ross, Freddie Miller Take Garcia and Christy in Chicago Fiascos

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(INS)—Barney Ross, world's welterweight champion, was looking for new fields to conquer today following a brilliant two-fisted victory last night over Ceferino Garcia, west coast Filipino, at the Chicago stadium.

Ross administered a sound whipping to the muscular Filipino, who had the audacity to floor the champion twice during an engagement on the coast and had the clippings to prove it, Garcia should have known better.

Ross' title was not at stake.

No more than 12,000 saw the contest that was alternately a barroom brawl and a superb exhibition of boxing. For the most part, Ross was the instructor and there were odd moments when the customers sat in amazement at the Filipino's ability to remain perpendicular. But he weathered intermittent fusillades with admirable consistency only to come on for more, which he promptly got.

Freddie Miller, world's featherweight champion, spotted Jimmy Christy, Chicago, seven pounds, and then proceeded to give Christy a thorough 10-round battering in the semi-windup. The title was not at stake.

Before entering the ring Christy announced his retirement as a pugilistic artist, win, lose or draw with Miller, to devote his time to commercial art. In his two years as a professional, Christy has fought 17 battles, losing but two. Before losing last night's affair he lost a decision to Baby Arizendi. He was considered an outstanding candidate for the lightweight championship.

PRINCETON'S ATOM ENDS HIS FINE CAREER TODAY

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 30.—(INS)—Garry "Spook" Le Van will hang up his cleats with the conclusion of this afternoon's classic between Princeton and Yale, but his scintillating feats will live on in football's hall of fame with the Poes, Booths and other "little men" of the gridiron.

These "little men," who helped football advance from the bone and muscle class to the scientific sport it is today, have shone on occasions but only Princeton's "six Poes" rival Le Van's consistent brilliancy over a stretch of three years.

WESLEYAN LOSES ELEVEN

DELAWARE, Nov. 30.—(INS)—Loss of 11 of its 23 letter men and a stiff schedule that includes Pittsburgh in 1936 today was the problem Ohio Wesleyan university had to face.

The men to be graduated are Henry Morier, Dayton, voted as the most valuable player of the 1935 team; Robert Longworth, Hicksville; Paul Sell, Delaware; George Wilson, Geneva, Ill.; Roy Overturf, Columbus; Emory Sawyer, Lakewood; Bill Stults, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Sam Roberts, Delaware; Dick Cary Millersburg, and Oral Huth, Akron.

79,000 TO SEE ANNUAL TIFF BETWEEN ARMY AND NAVY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—(INS)—In the theatrical atmosphere of a well ordered musical comedy, the great fantasy of football between the Army and Navy was to come down to a decision this afternoon on Franklin field before an absolute sell out of 79,000, some of whom may still retain some semblance of sanity. For this was only incidentally a football game. Actually and to every practical purpose, it was the usual clambake in which Park avenue and Piping Rock take down the side combs and go for gavotte with the military set.

As a result, there was revelry by night and owl-eyes by day, with the rampage just beginning. They may have some of the participants out of their hotels by Monday, by which time they will be able to buy the morning papers and find out who won.

WENDT HOLDS KEY

Upon the broad shoulders of a sophomore-next year, a freshman now, may depend the success or failure of the Ohio team—He is Emerson Wendt, brother of Merle Wendt, all-Big Ten end and captain—The younger Wendt plays center, is over six feet and weighs 192—Right now Buck coaches believe he is good enough to take over Gomer Jones' job—If young Wendt makes the grade the biggest worry for Buck coaches next fall is ended ***

TEXAS ELEVENS TANGLE; WINNER MAY VISIT BOWL

Tiny Thornhill of Stanford to Scout; T. C. U. is Pre-Game Favorite

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 30.—(INS)—Undeclared and untied Texas Christian and Southern Methodist meet on the gridiron here today playing "double or nothing."

The southwestern conference championship and a Rose Bowl bid are the double stakes.

Indicating the probability the winner would be announced Monday as the Rose Bowl opponent of Stanford was the presence of representatives of Tiny Thornhill, Stanford coach, to scout the teams.

Temporary bleachers have increased Texas Christian's stadium's seating capacity to 30,500, and every ticket has been sold.

Scalpers are reaping a harvest, with seats selling at from $40. to $50.

Federal agents abound, trailing anyone who speaks in a whisper as a scalping suspect.

Hotels Crowded

Hotel reservations are exhausted and lobbies are thronged with T. C. U. who have poured into Fort Worth for their homecoming, an occasion on which Texas Christian has never lost to Southern Methodist.

Many eastern and far western sports writers are on hand to gain a first-hand knowledge of the brand of football that has brought small southwestern colleges and universities national recognition.

Southern Methodist took a brief drill on its home field at Dallas yesterday, while T. C. U. went through a short final practice session at the stadium here.

Coach Matty Bell of S. M. U., was gloomy today as game-time approached, indicating that it was highly improbable he would even start the game.

Coach L. D. Meyer of T. C. U., confined his pregame statement to: "It's going to be a rough, tough fight."

Both squads are exponents of the aerial game—both lateral and forward, and critics expect the battle may take on the aspect of a basketball game.

Each team has won 10 games this season.

Now that Italians have to make their food go a long way, one appropriate suggestion might be to serve straws with the spaghetti.

In the southern part of Ohio cream is now being graded as it is purchased, and being paid for accordingly. Plans are to carry this sort of purchasing program into other parts of the state.

Under the project the county is to furnish $254 for material expenses and federal aid totals $14,859. The project will furnish employment to about 40 women who will make clothing for distribution to needy families.

Full details for the operation of the project and the locations of the "sewing circles" have not been received at the local office.

3 PEACE MOVES LESSEN FEAR OF GREAT WARFARE

As a "climb down" by Mussolini, and it was thought he had undertaken this move as a consequence of assurances to Britain by Premier Laval of France of Anglo-French cooperation in the Mediterranean.

There was no indication that the latest developments would have any effect on the secret defensive measures being considered by the British government in the event the effort to halt Duce's war in East Africa leads to a "clagration in Europe."

The London Press was intrigued by the meaning of the Italian change in tone as evidenced by the outpouring of Rome denials.

The London Daily Herald asked: "Why this sudden mildness after all the bluster?"

And the News Chronicle wanted to know:

"What's the m.ystery behind, Mussolini's quick change of tune?"

May Move Again

Some papers believed it might be a prelude to some new diplomatic move before Dec. 12, when the league committee of 18 will meet in its danger-fraught session on further penalization of Italy's aspirations in Africa.

DAVEY INITIATES CAMPAIGN WITH BULKLEY ATTACK

re-election. This situation leaves me no alternative.

In his attack on Senator Bulkley, Gov. Davey charged that the Cleveland Plain Dealer was Bulkley's personal organ, and challenged the state's senior senator to "confine his attentions to his senatorial duties and not try to mess things up for the Democratic party in Ohio," or "withdraw his hand-picked candidate and run for governor himself."

"Contrary to all the rules of politics," he declared, "Senator Bulkley and his bitter-enders have brought forth a hand-picked candidate to oppose me in the primary. There is no excuse in the facts or the situation nor the rules of politics for the candidacy. Its whole purpose is to destroy Davey."

"The underhanded and scurrilous conspiracy of this little cabal of bitter-enders leaves no choice for any man with self-respect and red blood," the Governor continued. "I would be a candidate under these circumstances if it meant that my re-election would cause me to die in my tracks, carrying the almost impossible load of work and responsibility connected with the governorship in the next term."

"Many people have asked me why the Cleveland Plain Dealer is so bitter and unfair toward me and I think perhaps this is a good time and place to answer that question publicly."

"If you will go back over its files for the past 12 months, beginning before the inauguration, to before I had the opportunity to perform an official act, you will find that they have carried on a relentless anti-Davey crusade. The Plain Dealer has maliciously distorted the truth about my administration. They have deliberately misrepresented my position on relief."

"Senator Bulkley's family owns the Plain Dealer. He dictates their political action. When they speak, it is Senator Bulkley speaking. He causes them to say what he is a little too timid to say personally."

"A number of our citizens attended the funeral of N. C. Bohnert at South Bloomfield Sunday. The local Boy Scouts are collecting old and discarded toys and will repair them for distribution among the poor children for Christmas."

EVELYN WARD'S POEM IS FIRST IN CONTEST

"Autumn Reveries" was the subject of Evelyn Ward's poem which was selected for first place in the poetry contest sponsored by the Red and Black. Second and third honors were both won by Alice Griner.

Evelyn will receive a free subscription to the Circle as a prize for this contest.

Mrs. Watson chairman, Mr. Bowen and Mr. Fischer judged this contest. When the contest was judged, no names were attached to the poems.

Twelve poems were submitted to the contest.

The topic for the next contest will be Christmas or any other subject relating to winter. All poems written on this subject should have a title and should be handed in before December 13.

AUTUMN REVERIES

My heart's in the roar of the cold north wind.
In the drifts of falling leaves.
With the swallows' flight to the golden South.
As they leave their homes in the eaves.

My feet are restless. They want to run
And play on the frost-touched hills.
Or rush with the water's spray and foam.
As it leaps down rock-choked rills.

I long to rise with the drifting smoke
And sweep over town and mart.
For the call of the wild is in my soul.
And autumn is in my heart.
By Evelyn Ward '36.

AUTUMN BONFIRES

There's something in an autumn fire
That finds its way into my soul.
Flames red and gold leap up and seem
To seek the heavens as their goal.

The smell—the very taste of smoke
That issues from the dry, hard wood
To fill the air with hazy clouds—
Gives me a thrill that naught else could.

While sitting there, in crackling sounds
Of burning leaves I find delight.
Bright sparks dart up into the dark
I watch till they are out of sight.

The fire burns low, the flames die down.
I now perceive but ashes gray.
And I know well that something else
Has also burned since yesterday.
By Alice Griner '36.

THANKSGIVING PRAYER

Dear God, who gives all things to us,
Hear Thou our fervent prayer of thanks.
As here before this feast we pause
To humbly show our gratitude.

Three hundred years have come and gone
Since those brave Pilgrims gave their thanks
For friends, and food, and safe repose,
For health that saved them from the cold.

They thanked Thee for their store of grain,
For venison, and purple grapes,
They thanked thee for their Indian friends
And asked for future calm and peace.

Today we wish to tell Thee that Thou, Lord, hast giv'n us these and more
With which to make us so secure,
Far more than they, the Pilgrims, had.

And so, before Thy throne we bow,
Oh, Bounteous Giver to mankind!
Pray grant good fortune to us all
Tomorrow and in years to come.
By Alice Griner '36.

TIGER'S EYE

The following is an article from the "Tiger's Eye," a bi-weekly paper published by Dr. Day's third period English class.

SOME students in Circleville high school have acquired the habit of not participating in class discussion or student activities. The shiftless attitude of "Why should I recite? Let the other fellow do the work," is very prevalent.

Also, I have noticed that some display rude manners. Namely, a spontaneous recitation without regard for other students in the class.

To make the subject more enjoyable and profitable, I believe every member of the class should

"MARK TWAIN"

Today, November 30, the world is celebrating the centennial birthday of Samuel Langhorne Clemens. To some people he is better known as Mark Twain.

What boy does not count among his treasures "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn"? What man, when re-reading them, does not find new phases of humor?

Statues in honor of America's greatest humorist have been erected in his birthplace, but the most signal tribute to his memory is the 106-acre Mark Twain Memorial Park on the banks of the Salt river, a beautiful stream flowing thru the village of Florida.

This contains the humble two-room cottage where the author was born, and which has long been a Mecca for thousands of those who have learned to appreciate him "who cheered and comforted a tired world."

Mark Twain received his pen name while working on one of the river boats, about which he so often wrote. When it was time for him to drop the cable, the Captain would call out, "Mark Twain!" In later life, when Samuel Clemens wrote of his Mississippi adventures, he remembered the incident and signed his name "Mark Twain."

Today the name Mark Twain is known the world over. His books have been translated into nearly all languages.

INTER-CLASS BASKETBALL PRACTICE OPENS MONDAY

Practices for the inter-class basketball tournament will get under way Monday evening. This affair, which is scheduled for the middle of December, always attracts widespread attention and enthusiasm among students and is being arranged on a much more elaborate schedule than ever before.

According to Mr. Reger, who is in charge of the event, two games will be played each evening instead of the usual single contest.

Each class will have an "A" and "B" squad, each one required to use at least eight men every game. The "B" team will play first, immediately following the first contest the "A" squads will play.

Seventh and eighth graders will also have teams this year, but will be allowed to play only against each other.

Varsity men and those on the reserve squad are not eligible to play.

Mr. Reger will coach the seventh graders; Mr. Lea, the eighth graders; Mr. Jewett is in charge of the Freshman; Mr. Watts handles the helm for the Sophomores; Mr. Cress, the Juniors; and Mr. Day, the Seniors. Local officials will be in charge.

JUNIOR CLASS RINGS SELECTED AT MEETING

At a meeting held Monday afternoon the member of the Junior class selected a seven facet stone as their Class ring.

The members of the class may either have a ring or a pin, they may also select from black, white, green, onyx, blue spinel, sardonyx or synthetic ruby as the color of their emblem.

A one dollar deposit must be made with the Class treasure by all students desiring to purchase either the ring or pin.

These emblems will be purchased through Sensenbrenner's Watch Shop.

ANNUAL COURT SEASON FINDS NEW HOLLAND FOE

On next Tuesday evening the 1935 edition of the Circleville high school Basketball team will tangle with the fast New Holland outfit on the C. A. C. floor.

When the New Holland team meets the "Tiger" quintet it will have the experience of three games while C. H. S. will be opening its schedule.

Already this season Shad's Saunders' boys have defeated Madison Mills, Clarkburg and Williamsport and have yet to suffer a setback.

Spearmen, R. Dennis, H. Dennis, Ater and Ev. Landman, flashy all-City center, will represent the New Holland basketballers while the "Tiger" lineup is, as yet, uncertain.

Ervin Carlisle, former Central Buckeye league coach, will officiate at the contest.

The Circleville boys will enter the game wearing flashy new red and black uniforms.

The respective teams of schools will also do battle at C. A. C. Tuesday evening.

E. M. S. MINSTREL NEW; TO BE STAGED DEC. 4

Something new and different in Circleville High School this year are the words that can be well applied to the minstrel to be given as an assembly program Wednesday, December 4 by the E. M. S. club.

This minstrel is under the direction of Miss Hitter, club advisor, with members of the organization to be the end men. Eighteen of the members will compose the chorus.

Dorothy Beatty, Eleanor Brown, Ruby Chaffin, Richard Harmon, Hildebrand Hones, and Kate Moore will play the spools of end men with Mattias Davis as the interlocutor.

A program containing the full particulars of the program will be distributed at the opening of the assembly.

The committee in charge of the minstrel is Eleanor Brown, Kate Gunning, Richard Harmon, Hildebrand Hones, and Anne Vierboorn.

THREE NEW STUDENTS ENROLLED AT HI SCHOOL

Three new students enrolled in Circleville High School during November.

They are Wayne Garretts, Freshman from Groveport; Leona Herron, Freshman, from Laurelville; and Atwell Lindsay, Junior from Walnut-twp.

THANKSGIVING ASSEMBLY ADDRESSED BY PASTOR

Rev. T. C. Harper of the United Brethren church was the principal speaker in the Thanksgiving assembly program using as his topic "Things We Should Be Thankful For."

The High School orchestra furnished the music for this, the last assembly before vacation, in their usual faultless fashion.

Richard Harmon, a High School senior, read the Thanksgiving scripture and introduced Rev. Harper to the assembly.
